WELCOME NICOLE, A GREAT ADDITION TO SUPPORTING KIDDS!

Nicole Smith is a therapist at Supporting Kidds. She received her MA in Clinical Counseling from LaSalle University and BA from Saint Leo University. She is a Licensed Professional Counselor of Mental Health (LPCMH) and also a Nationally Board Certified Counselor. Nicole first started working with children in an inpatient setting in her home state of New Hampshire, and is excited to continue this work in Delaware. She has worked with a variety of clients spanning all ages and a wide range of emotional disorders. Her goal for therapy is to improve the overall family system following a loss, and to help develop healthy coping strategies for change.

The Center for Creative Arts Presents:

Drawing Families Together: The Art of Healing

Drawing Families Together: Healing Through the Arts, is our new collaborative program with Center for the Creative Arts. The program allows us to experience, understand and accept loss through a family oriented art program that emphasizes creativity and interaction.

The program had a successful start on September 10 and will be concluding on September 24th. We look forward to collaborating with CCA again in the future!

Do you love gardening?

We are looking for loving long term helpers- mature caring people who are willing to take ownership of our gardens and our ongoing landscape needs. This would mainly involve weeding and making sure our plants get love. If you are interested, please contact Amy Smith at smith@supportingkidds.org

Healing Pathways

Healing Pathways provides grieving children the opportunity to spend time with same-aged peers who are experiencing similar situations. This program addresses multiple topics and issues pertaining to the normal grief process, and is appropriate for all children grieving the loss of an immediate family member - it is not simply for those who are experiencing considerable challenges in their grief. This program is open to grieving children, ages 5-18, and their caregivers.

Our 6-week bereavement support group, Healing Pathways is registering for our fall group. Group begins October 8 and run through November 12.

Please call (302)235-5544 or email support@supportingkidds.org to register.
